

Pi-day Celebration

Date of Event: 22 July 2019

MIT ACSC has Organized Aptitude test competition on account of Pi-approximation day celebration, the day dedicated to mathematical constant π ,Pi denotes the relationship between a circle's circumference and its diameter and is denoted by the fraction $22/7$. People in countries that write their dates in the date/ month format celebrate Pi Approximation or Casual Pi Day on 22 July or $22/7$. The aim of this event is to encourage, motivate and create interest in Mathematics among the students.

On the same day the mathematics department has inaugurated Maths-club for all student of college, the objective of this club are to encourage and support the study of mathematics, encourage to participate in various competitions and it has planned to take various social and academic activities, workshops and seminars etc. In charge of this club is Mrs. ManjulaChaudary.

