generally don't hasten to enter the job market after graduation—their progression is towards research institutions of higher learning. The college has thought through every little thing—from the labs to the space for conducting research activities and collaborative work where students love to spend hours working on several projects.

There is no dearth of opportunities for students spending their three years at Miranda. The institute curates programmes such as the science conclave and numerous seminars. Students from the science departments also visit research organisations to get training, undertake field trips, excursions, summer projects, internships that develop their intellectual rigour, practical, analytical and problem-solving skills. Having completed their BSc from the college, students from Miranda go out into the real world equipped with the ability to apply the knowledge that they have acquired in its hallowed classrooms. Ask Manisha Yadav, who was part of the 2016 batch of chemistry students in the college. "Miranda helped us build a whole empire of abilities," she says. "Not only did the college teach us to be self-sufficient but it also fortified us with the skills to manage the personal-professional sphere with equal aplomb. Miranda was the place I fell in love, both with people and with myself." ■

Rankings are based on objective and perceptual survey data. Only colleges that offer a full-time undergraduate programme and which submitted objective data of minimum three graduated batches were ranked. All scores have been rounded off to one decimal place, this may result in rounding-off errors while adding the parameter-wise score. The colleges not ranked during perceptual survey have got nil marks in perceptual score
